

Technologies of Imagination: Fifty Years Beyond Man and His Future
April 5th, 8:30am-4:00pm, Social Science rm. 109

8:30-9:00

Welcome and Introduction

Ben Hurlbut (School of Life Sciences, ASU)

9:00-10:30

Panel 1: The Ethics of Imagination

- Nathan Crowe (Center for Biology and Society, ASU) “Purposefully Provocative: Joshua Lederberg, Cloning, and the Future”
- Nasser Zakariya (NYU) “Planned Evolution: Huxley and Haldane's Contributions to Man and His Future”
- John Evans (Sociology, UCSD), “The Social Legacy of Man and His Future”

Moderator: Jenny Brian (Barrett the Honors College, ASU)

10:30-10:45

Coffee Break

10:45-12:15

Panel 2: Technological Futures and the Public Imagination

- Gregg Zachary (Consortium for Science Policy and Outcomes, ASU), “From 1963 to 2063: Humanity, Hope and the Future of Science”
- Marcy Darnovsky (Center for Genetics and Society), “The Biopolitical Imagination: Technological Troubles and Social Issues”
- Brice Laurent (Center for the Sociology of Innovation, Mines ParisTech), “Alternative Imaginations. Resisting the Integration of Publics in Science?”

Moderator: Edward Finn (Center for Science and the Imagination, ASU)

12:15-1:15

Lunch

1:15-2:45

Panel 3: Imagining Sustainable Futures

- Kyoko Sato (Science, Technology and Society, Stanford), “Imagining Futures of Food: Technology, the Environment, and Identity”
- Gaymon Bennett (Center for Biological Futures, Fred Hutchison), “An Unsustainable Virtue: Synthetic Biology in Four Figures”
- Clark Miller (Consortium for Science Policy and Outcomes, ASU), “Huxley's Folly: Science and Engineering are the Problem, not the Solution, to a Sustainable Human Future”

Moderator: Rolf Halden (Biodesign, ASU)

3:00-4:00

Reflections

David Guston (Consortium for Science Policy and Outcomes, ASU)

Moderator: Ben Hurlbut (School of Life Sciences, ASU)